STATE FARM MEET OPENS

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Is Principal Speaker on Program

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3—In an address before the eleventh annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, here today, United States Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde stressed the stabilization of the market for agriculture products and gave five methods for the improvement of farming.

The meeting is being held in conjunction with the eighteenth annual "Farmers' Week" at Ohio State university here, and will continue until Saturday.

The five methods, which were listed by Secretary Hyde, are the tariff, enlarging the output for farm products, proper use of land, a readjustment of farm taxation and the organization of agriculture.

He presented his analysis of the tariff, and pointed out that only 30 per cent of the $2,200,000,000 imports into the United States annually are competitive with American agriculture.

The secretary declared that the United States has 950,000,000 acres of lands which is classed as farm lands, of which 505,000,000 acres are tillable. By intensive cultivation methods, the 505,000,000 acres could produce twice its present output, he declared.

He recommended a complete organization of agriculture, the farmers and agricultural products.

"I'LL RETIRE," RUTH'S THREAT TO YANKEES

Sticks to Demand for $85,000 on Three-Year Contract

TELLS OF PLANS

Home Run King Says Finances Would Not Force Him To Play

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—In a formal statement made public today, Babe Ruth announced that unless the New York Yankees met his demand for an $85,000 contract, he would retire from organized baseball.

"If the Yankees reject my request for an increase, I will remain idle, which at my age means retirement from baseball," the statement read in part. "I mean organized baseball. A few years ago I could not take this attitude. I would be obliged to sign at any terms for the same reasons 95 per cent of all ball players have to sign—bread and butter. Well, there's enough bread and butter in our home, even if I never touch another baseball in my life. Without receiving five cents from the Yankees in 1930, I am assured an income of $25,000 from established dividends and royalties."

Ruth added that his income would be supplemented by "whatever I can pick up on the side." He said he had returned unsigned his contract, which is believed to have called for $75,000 over a two-year period, and darkly hinted that if the worst came to the worst, he would engage in exhibition games throughout the year. In such a case, his suspension for at least a year would be almost automatic.

"During the winter," the statement continued, "I rejected easy money in Vaudeville and talking pictures to keep myself in shape, but if the Yankees force me into retirement, I will accept some of the many offers, which include a variety of entertainment propositions, exhibition games during the summer and even an offer from a circus. But I prefer to stick with the Yankees at $85,000 per year on a three-year contract."

The statement further declared that he entertained only the kindliest regard for "Jake," as he calls Colonel Ruppert, but that the controversy was strictly a business one in which he felt the club had neglected to value properly his services at the box office. He said these services had increased in value for all of his activities outside of baseball and that is was about time baseball recognized the necessity of following suit.

It is understood that Ruth has saved $150,000 during the last three years.

BETTER JAILERS ARE NEED, REPORT SHOWS

National Crime Commission Makes Recommendation for Penal Reform

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—Prison betterment workers today discussed the latest report of the National Crime commission, just released, which stressed the importance of better jailers. The report was made by a committee on pardons, of which Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, is chairman.

Any reform of penal administration will depend more on better guards than improved jails, the report said.

The committee has been seeking for five years the best measures to reduce crime in America and for the last year has studied prison guards. The committee reported the political spoils system so common in the naming of guards and their pay so low that it reached the conclusion most guards "are ignorant men, weaker mentally than the prisoner they watch."

The report also stated that despite the advance of the reform idea, imprisonment to 90 per cent of the adult prisoners in this country still means "confinement in durance vile."

Selection of guards by civil service was recommended.

DANNER NAMED BUICK CO. HEAD

Elected General Manager of Auto Concern at Reorganization Session

Carl E. Danner, former sales manager of the Marion Buick Co., has been elected vice president and general manager. He was elected head of the company at the annual meeting of the stockholders and directors held Saturday afternoon. The meeting resulted in a reorganization of the company's list of officers.

The election of Danner places him in full charge of the management to replace the late J. L. Price, who had served as head of the company since 1921.

Other officers

Other officers elected at the meeting are Mrs. J. L. Price, president, and Walter E. Hane, secretary and treasurer. The directors elected were H. B. Hane, Fred E. Guthery, Walter E. Hane, H. G. Price, Mrs. J. L. Price, and Carl E. Danner.

Danner, the new general manager, has been with the Marion Buick Co. for 10 years. In 1920 he joined the organization as a salesman. In 1924 he was made sales manager, in which capacity he continued until the election Saturday. In his new office he will have charge of the management of the firm as well as the direction of sales.

Organized in 1918

The company was organized in 1918 with William Moyer as manager. In 1920 the controlling interest passed to J. L. Price and Charles E. Schaad. A year later Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Price and H. G. Price assumed control and J. L. Price was placed in charge as president. He continued in that position until his death last Oct. 12.

C. O. Dunham, general sales manager for the Ohio Buick Co., of Cleveland, Buick distributors for Ohio, attended the meeting here Saturday.

The robbery was one of the most daring that has been executed here in months. The bandits obtained $300 from the pockets of their victims after having lined them against the wall with the sharp command to "keep perfectly quiet or you'll get bored with these gats." Then they looted the poolroom strong box of $700 and fled.

LIGHT FOG BLAMED

Death Comes Instantly as Aviator's Skull Is Fractured

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 3—His visibility partly obscured by fog, Carr T. Pridham, 33, of Lexington, Mass., an experienced air mail pilot for the Colonial Airways, today was almost instantly killed, when his plane struck an observation platform, and crashed into the Connecticut river, more than 100 yards away.

The left wing of the pitcairn plane, in which the pilot was enroute from New York to Boston, crashed into the low platform which was on top of a small building at the very edge of Brainard field here.

Had the plane gone two feet to the left, the wing would have cleared the obstruction.

The medical examiner, Dr. William Luby, stated he believed the cause of death to have been a fractured skull.

Pet Groundhog On Time

Emerges from Dugout Into Sun's Rays After Month Under Cover

IF there are any agnostics in Marion who are so hard-shelled as to absolutely disbelieve the time-honored groundhog day story they should spend a few minutes discussing the subject with Mrs. L. H. Dennis, of 130 Franconia av.

Mrs. Dennis has a pet groundhog that saw its shadow yesterday. The animal, according to Mrs. Dennis, made its first appearance from its dugout, in its back yard pen in nearly a month at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Yesterday being Feb. 2, the day legend says all well behaved groundhogs are supposed to make their debut, maybe there is something to the story after all.

* * *

THE chief bone of contention between the believers and the disbelievers seems to not be whether the groundhog actually comes out of his hibernation on Feb. 2, but whether there will be six weeks more winter if he does and sees his shadow. That is something else again. In many quarters it is rather firmly believed that winter will be over when the buds begin to break and the fish begin to bite, regardless of the groundhog and the first chirp of the robin.

The appearance of Mrs. Dennis' pet yesterday was the first time the animal had been seen since Jan. 7, when high water forced him to retirement. Other groundhogs which have been made pets of the Dennis family have upheld the time honored Feb. 2 tale, it was stated today.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

Mother and Son Severely Burned as They Rescue Two Little Ones

CONNEAUT, Feb. 3—Two small girls were burned to death, two other children were rescued and a mother and son were severely burned today when fire razed their isolated farm home at Hammonds Corners, 10 miles south of here.

The flames completely destroyed the house and firemen were unable to recover the bodies of the dead children, Virginia, 7, and Margaret Yuhas, 11.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Yuhas, working in the barn near the house, first noticed the flames and called to her son, William, 18. Both rushed into the house in an attempt to rescue the four children still sleeping.

The son rescued his three-year-old brother, Edward, and was burned severely about the hands and face as he carried the child to safety. The mother sustained serious burns about the body as she rescued her year-old son, Robert, from his crib in a second floor bedroom.

Sleeping Children Carried to Safety as Apartment House Burns

TOLEDO, Feb. 3—Miss Lillian Wilhelm, 21, is being heralded as a heroine here today, following her rescue of two small children, one of them only eight weeks old, from a burning apartment house.

The girl had been placed in charge of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. Scott, who were away when the fire started. She said she was reading when she heard calls of "fire" from an adjoining apartment.

She awakened the two small tots, Phyllis, 6, and Hugh, Jr., 8 weeks, and handed them out of a window to the father, who had just returned home. Miss Wilhelm then crawled to safety through the window.

Three other persons were rescued from the flaming apartment house.

DOG SAVES CHILD

Severe Cold All That Columbus Youngster Has After Dipping

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3—A severe cold is all that Richard Patterson, 7, can complain of today, thanks to Bowser.

The boy was coasting near the Olentangy river yesterday with a group of companions when he guided his sled too close to the bank of the stream, slipped onto the thin ice, and plunged into the frigid water.

Bowser, a German police dog which is owned by Richard W. Van Dyke, saved the boy's life, when the other boys who were unable to rescue their companion, tied a rope around the dog's neck and told him to "get" Richard. Richard grabbed the rope and was dragged from the river, none the worse for his accident except a cold.

CHILD HIT BY AUTO ON E. CENTER ST.

Rolled Almost Half a City Block, but Escapes Serious Injury

On her way to Sunday school yesterday morning, Stella Backus, nine years old, of 151 McWilliams st., was struck by a machine driven by Hobart Snelltzer, of Mansfield, and rolled from in front of the Low Price Filling station, East Center st. to the Anthony Laundry Co. building, a distance of almost half a city block. Her injuries were not serious.

The girl was standing near the curb at the corner of High and Center st. when the driver of the machine saw her. He tried to stop but the car skidded and hit her.

Mr. Snelltzer picked her up and rushed her to the offices of a local physician, and then took her to her home. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Backus. The father is cook at the Harding King restaurant, South Main st.

This morning, the attending physician said that no bones were broken, but that girl's head and body are bruised. Stella is a pupil at the Greenwood Street school.

ILL HEALTH IS REASON GIVEN FOR DECISION

Resignation Presented to President Hoover by Son, Robert Taft

FORMER EXECUTIVE 72

About To End Three-Week Rest at Asheville and Return to Capital

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States Supreme court, today tendered his resignation to President Hoover.

The resignation was formally presented to the president by the jurist's son, Robert Taft.

The White House announced receipt of the resignation but said no action had been taken.

Taft, in failing health for the last three years because of a bladder ailment, left Washington three weeks ago for a rest cure at Asheville, N. C. Before leaving he spent 10 days in Garfield hospital here.

[illegible]

His physicians announced at that time the eminent jurist and former president of the United States was not an ill man but merely entered the hospital for treatment precautionary against a recurrence of the old ailment.

Taft was the twenty-seventh president of the United States. He was elected Nov. 3, 1908 for the term beginning March 4, 1909, to March 4, 1913. He was renominated for the presidency in June, 1912, but was defeated in the November election by Woodrow Wilson, Democrat.

The resignation was written in legal form and it was indicated Mr. Hoover will accept it with regrets either late today or tomorrow.

Taft cited ill health for his reason to quit as the chief justice of the highest court in the nation.

Taft is 72 Years Old

The White House said Taft's letter "merely followed legal form" and would not be released to the press.

It was further indicated at the executive offices that the jurist's action did not come as a surprise.

Taft is 72 years old and it is not thought he will live for ten years more because of his recent illnesses. Only two years ago he was a patient at Garfield for bladder disorder.

The chief justice will end his stay at the Asheville resort late today and return to his Washington home. He stated this in his letter.

Two of the outstanding dissenting justices of the supreme court—Oliver Wendell Holmes and Harlan Fiske Stone—took front rank on the capital's speculation as a successor to Chief Justice Taft.

The former, who reaches his eighty-ninth birthday March 8, is now acting chief justice by reason of seniority, while Justice Stone has long been known as one of the closest personal friends of President Hoover.

The names of Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard, member of the Hoover law enforcement commission, Attorney General William D. Mitchell and John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924, were prominently mentioned for the vacancy on the court.

MOST OFFICIALLY HONORED CITIZEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The resignation of Chief Justice William Howard Taft takes from public life the most officially honored man in the history of the nation.

He is the only man who has ever headed two of the three branches of government, as president and as chief justice.

His life is a record of public service, from the time he held his first office as assistant prosecuting attorney at Cincinnati from 1881 to 1883.

National League Will Approve Schedule Tuesday; Few Trades Loom

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—The annual hoof and mouth convention, so called because it is equally hard on each, will get under way today with the annual meetings of the International and Eastern leagues, followed by the schedule meeting of the National league tomorrow. They hold a schedule meeting every year, largely because it feels so good when they stop. There is no other purpose for the thing, since the schedule is always approved, ad lib and per se, but there is ever the possibility that a magnate will lose his presence of mind under a potted palm in the lobby and so commit himself to something really constructive. This possibility breathes life and hope into a program that otherwise is defunct, by choice.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, for instance, may try to hawk Dazzy Vance to the Cubs or Pirates or any other club that is willing to support the Dazzler in the manner to which he is accustomed. This represents about $20,000 a year in money, not to mention the players that would be tossed in by way of emphasis and for good measure; as the interest of the meeting in Mr. Vance may turn out to be pardonably tepid.

Perhaps the Pittsburgh club will try to do something with Burleigh Grimes, another fretful young man who has a vulgar interest in money, thereby differing from the average club owner. The latter has absolutely no interest in money, as long as it isn't his. Adolfo Luque may be offered for trade by the Reds and the Cubs are understood to be about to swing a deal with another first division for a catcher, but otherwise nothing is supposed to be contemplated. This is ominous. Baseball has a genius for doing nothing that is expected of it, and, by nightfall, it may have half of the National league traded to Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The so called Brooklyn situation will go for another airing and this time it probably will be settled definitely, for it is all very simple. The only trouble in Brooklyn is that President Wilbert Robinson refuses to fire Manager Wilbert Robinson at the suggestion of Vice President McKeever, who signs the pay checks. And Vice President McKeever refuses to sign the pay check for President Robinson who refuses to fire Manager Robinson, proving beyond all doubt that he is a very headstrong fellow. Meantime, the ball club is getting along great or greatly, as we say at the feed store, and is getting resolutely ready to finish last.

Something, too, may break on the holdout situation, it being admitted that such a thing exists, except at the offices of the local American league ball club, where Babe Ruth is employed. Vance was cut $10,000 a year, Freddie Lindstorm $2,000 a year, Ed Roush $14,000 a year and Russ McWeeny, $4,000 a year. None of them are angry, of course, just terribly hurt. As for Mr. Roub, he probably will be willing to compromise by taking the $14,000 that was mashied off his salary and let the ball club have the $7,000 that remains. He is very big about things like that.

However, it will be well if we don't look for too much from the baseball men. There may not be enough potted palms to go around and, besides, some of the magnates may find themselves at a disadvantage in these surroundings. A palm is not always potted.

CONLEY TO BATTLE JOE BOYCHAN HERE

Are Featured in Main-Go of 30-Round Fight Card at Eagles' Hall Tonight; Snyder Is Carded

BALLYHOOED as the best fight card of the new year, the 30-round slugfest of the Marion Eagles is expected to draw a capacity crowd at the local hall tonight. The first fighters will take to the ring at 8:15 o'clock.

Two midget sluggers hold the center of the limelight. They are Joe Boychan of Cleveland and Johnny Conley of Toledo who will swap punches in the main-go. The boys will weigh in at 138 pounds and are scheduled to go eight rounds.

Boychan formerly fought out of Newark. He holds many notable victories over some of the best boys in his class in Ohio. Recently he defeated Eddie O'Dowd of Columbus. Conley holds quite a reputation as a slugger. He has won twice from Wildcat Auskings of Mt. Vernon.

Ray Snyder will reenter the local ring after being on the sidelines for nearly a year when he meets Joe Ryan of Toledo in the six-round semi-final. The local promoters have arranged a real test for the Marion mauler.

Other bouts on the card include two six-round preliminaries and a four-round curtain raiser. Art Williams, of Marion who made his first local appearance two weeks ago, has been booked for the first preliminary against Danny Burns of Cleveland. The second prelimin brings together Jack Murray and Steve George of Toledo and Cleveland, respectively.

WAITE HOYT TRADE WITH TIGERS IS OFF

Shawkey Says Yankees Unable To Secure Players Wanted in Deal

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 — The proposed deal, whereby Waite Hoyt was to go to the Detroit Tigers for Owen Carroll and Harry Rice, is off, Bob Shawkey, manager of the New York Yankees, announced upon his arrival in town today. Shawkey noted that he had been "unable to secure the players he wanted" and that, therefore, all proposed deals were cold and that the Yankees would stand pat on their present personnel.

Shawkey also declared that Babe Ruth was in great condition, having reduced his weight by golf and exercises from 242 to 225 pounds. Ruth is holding out for a three-year contract at $85,000 a year. He is expected to go to St. Petersburg, Fla., on Monday to resume light training.

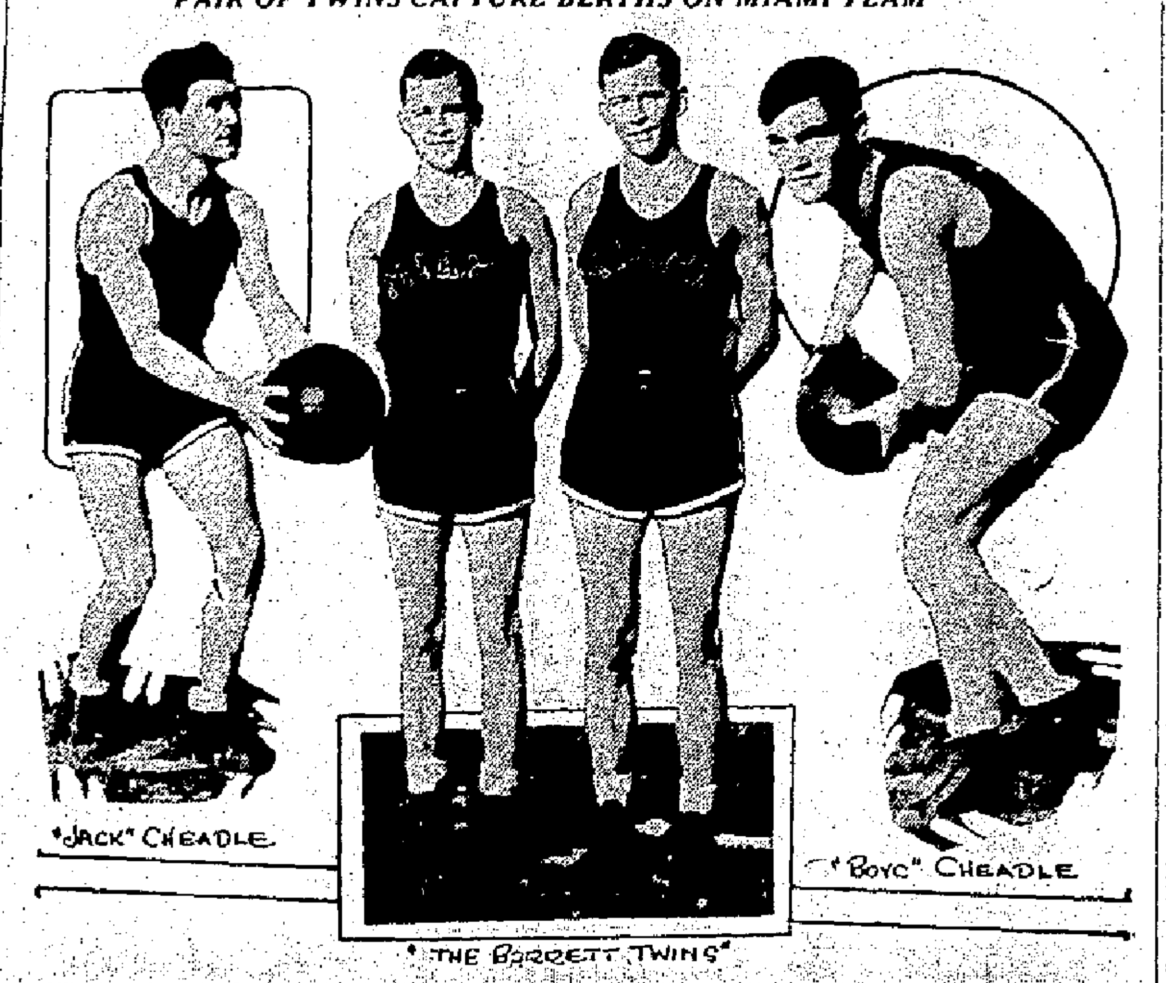
PAIR OF TWINS CAPTURE BERTHS ON MIAMI TEAM



Whether the Miami university basketball team wins games or not, Buckeye fans turn out to see two sets of brothers function on the same team. Two families just about monopolize the basketball situation at the Oxford school, with the Cheadle brothers playing the guards and the Barrett twins playing the forwards. All are sophomores. The Barrett twins, Robert and Richard, were stars on the Springfield, Ohio, high school teams, and the Cheadle brothers came to Miami from South Dakota where they gained state-wide reputations as members of the Salem state champion teams in 1926.

BATTLE OPENS FOR U. S. TENNIS CROWN

Indoor Meet Being Held in New York; Hall Cops First Match

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., only seeded player not favored with a bye in the first round, began his quest for the national indoor tennis title here today by conquering C. C. Chaffee of Providence, R. I., in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4.

Hall, No. 15 in national ranking and seeded second on the indoor tourney, who dropped his Canadian indoor crown to George Lott last week, was forced to 10 games in the second set only because of poor lighting. Under the none-too bright lights of the Seventh Regiment armory, hall consistently overshot the baseline.

Robert Considine of Washington, coholder of the national public parks doubles title, made an impressive start in his metropolitan debut when he smothered J. W. Kickman, New York, 6-1, 6-1.

Second round matches were featured by A. J. Wadsworth's 6-4, 6-3 victory over J. S. Free of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

SHUTE WINS TEXAS OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

Columbus Pro Leads Field by Seven Strokes To Cop Title

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 3—Densmore Shute, quiet young pro from Columbus, Ohio, was the new holder of the Texas Open golf crown today by virtue of his brilliant victory over a great field at Brackenridge park. Shute was also richer by $1,500.

Adding a 71 to his previous rounds of 68, 69, 69—all under par but the final round—Shute came in seven strokes ahead of the field. His nearest competitors were Al Espinosa, of Chicago; Neal McIntyre, of Indianapolis, and Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., who split second money.

BRITISHERS WIN

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3—Lord Aberdare and Dr. H. W. Leatham, of England, won the American national racquets doubles title at the Philadelphia Racquet club this afternoon by defeating Peter Kempwelch and Duncan Cambridge, two of their countrymen in three straight sets. The scores were 15-4, 15-7, and 15-10.

Vernon Juniors Walk Away with Cardington Quintet

Vernon Heights Junior cagers Saturday night were easy winners over the Cardington Reserves in a game played on the local court. The final score was 40 to 6 with Uhl doing the high scoring for the locals. In the preliminary the Vernon eighth grade downed Greenwood, 15 to 13.

MANDELL TO FIGHT IN CLEVELAND RING

Meets Joey Goodman in Main-Go Match on Benefit Card Tonight

CLEVELAND, Feb. 3 — Sammy Mandell, king of the lightweights, will oppose Joey Goodman, ambitious local youngster in a 12-round mauling match in the Public hall arena here tonight, topping the Cleveland Amateur Baseball association's annual fight card.

The Rockford sheik is expected to win easily, but Goodman, who owns a hefty right wallop and who is reported to have developed a corking good left hook, is given a bit of a look-in—not sufficient, enough, however, to keep the Mandell lad from being a nine or 10 to one favorite.

Indiana Club Gets Madison in Exchange for Pitcher

READING, Pa., Feb. 3—The Reading club of the International baseball league today announced Infielder Clayton Madison, former New York university captain and star, had been sent to the Decatur Three-I club in exchange for Pitcher Dewey O. Hinkle, a southpaw who won 19 of 26 games he pitched last year.

BUCYRUS, Feb. 3—After dropping two league games in a row, the Bucyrus High school cagers have started another winning streak. Saturday night the local quint journeyed to Sandusky, where it chalked up a 21-to-15 victory.

Lerch, Talbott and Baker were the many-basket men of the game. Lerch and Baker each counted seven points while Talbott got six.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.—Adv.

CINCINNATI, WOOSTER STANDS OUT IN STATE COURT CONFERENCE

Bearcats Only Undefeated Team in Buckeye State; Play Wesleyan

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3—The Cincinnati Bearcats of the Buckeye league and Wooster college, of the Ohio conference are still in the lead of their respective classes today as the Ohio college basketball season entered its second half.

From present indications, these two teams are the best in the Ohio conferences.

Ten of the 20 scheduled contests in the Buckeye conference have been played and Cincinnati is the only undefeated team. The fifth victim of the Bearcats was Denison, which was swamped under a 45-to-20 score Saturday night in the one league game which was scheduled.

Ohio Wesleyan, which shared the 1929 championship with Cincinnati, with one defeat and three wins for this season's record, is trying to catch the Bearcats. Their chance is considered slim, however. Miami and Ohio university have each suffered two losses. Denison remains in the cellar with no wins and five setbacks.

Miami has scheduled two games for this week. The Big Red will clash with the Wesleyan Bishops Tuesday, at Delaware, and the Ohio Bobcats at Oxford Saturday. This latter tilt will probably decide third position in the championship race.

Cincinnati, determined to have a clean slate for the year and a clean-cut championship, will play Ohio Wesleyan Saturday in their second game of the season. If the Bishops win, they have a chance to share the title with Cincinnati again.

Wooster is not being given much opposition toward its title aspects. It easily downed Case, 59 to 35, Saturday night. The Woosterites now have an average of 50 points a game in their conference contests.

Coach Mose Hole's quintet will take on Oberlin its most ancient rival, Saturday. Oberlin was downed by Muskingum last week-end but is expected to play better ball in Saturday's tilt.

Heidelberg and Mount Union are trailing Wooster with one defeat each, but the Student Princes are one-half game ahead of the Mounts, with four wins and one loss. Muskingum has won five games but two defeats have been scored against them.

RAMBLERS DEFEAT MANSFIELD, 36-25

Gillis, Lockwood and Cram Star as Local Y-Indus Five Chalks Up Eleventh Victory of Season

TAKING their eleventh game in 14 starts, the Marion Y-Indus Ramblers made it two victories over the Mansfield Y quintet Saturday night, 36 to 25.

Bolstered by the addition of Sharp, Simon and Channel of the Mansfield High school team, the hosts to the locals presented a far stronger combination against Marion than in the previous meeting.

After going through the first half leading 20 to 10, Marion eased up in the third period to permit Mansfield to drive up with a 22 to 20 count. The locals buckled down in the final frame to mark up 13 points to Mansfield's five.

Gillis, with 13 points, led both quintets in scoring. Lockwood scored nine and Cram seven points for Marion. Sharp was high man for the losers with three field goals.

Saturday night the Marion five will play Waldo of the County Church league in a preliminary fray to the Harding-Zanesville tilt in Star auditorium.

The lineups:

PURDUE QUINT NEXT ON BUCKEYE'S CARD

Ohio State Will Attempt To Stop Murphy Tonight at Lafayette

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3—Ohio State university's cage team, with only one victory and three defeats chalked up for its 1930 Western conference season, will tackle its biggest task of the year at Lafayette, Ind., tonight, when it tangles with "Stretch" Murphy and his Purdue team, leaders of the conference.

Murphy, the elongated forward, who has thrown fear into the hearts of all opponents, broke the all-time high scoring record of the Big Ten last year, which was previously held by the famous Johnny Miner, of Ohio State.

Coach Harold G. Olson is counting on little Hal Ervin, high scorer of the Buckeyes to date, to offset the rampage of Murphy and his team mate, Branch McCracken, lanky center.

"Wes" Fesler and his pal, Dick Larkins, playing the guard posts for the Buckeyes, will have one of their toughest assignments of the year tonight.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

Cash grain close: wheat 2 red 1.19@1 20; corn 3 yellow 88@89, oats 2 white 48½@49½; rye 2, 95; barley 2, 60.

CHICAGO, Feb 3—Heavy liquidation carried local wheat prices sharply lower the past week, and to a low point substantially under the level of prices set by the farm board and paid by cooperatives for country run grain. Weakness at Winnipeg and heaviness at Liverpool with continued dullness in export circles caused the selling.

Despite a rally of around 4 cents from the low points, wheat prices were 3¾@4¾ off for the week. Corn was ¼c lower to ¼c higher; oats 1@1½c down, and rye 3¼@7¼c lower.

Indications that liquidation had pretty well run its course for a time brought some reversal of sentiment and a wave of short covering which checked the decline and caused a moderate rally in wheat prices at the close of the week. There was nothing apparent to cause any rush to the bull side, but the trade generally seemed to feel that the market would be more of a two-sided affair this week.

Export trade showed little signs of improvement, even on the break. There were indications that liquidation at Winnipeg was based on belief that the pool must liquidate at least part of its holdings within the near future and with the limited foreign demand dropping prices at Winnipeg were extremely unfavorable here.

Conflicting reports from grain and banking circles leave the Canadian position a debatable question as far as the local trade is concerned, but there is no doubt that under the existing export situation with the very quite continental demand the trend of Winnipeg prices will continue to play a leading part in price activity here.

Russia Sells

While Broomhall continued to scout the idea of Russia's exports being large enough to be much of a factor that country offered and sold grain more freely. There were clearances from the Black Sea of 256,000 bu.

Although the farm board level of prices, with purchases there by cooperatives, appeared the turning point of the market in the past week's trade there was doubt expressed in the trade as to the effect of this situation in event of further declines. When it was found only country run wheat was being purchased, some expressed belief that a severe break on further liquidation might increase the country run to burdensome proportions.

There were a few scattered reports of apprehension over winter crop conditions in some sections of the southwest, but they were not of much consequence as market factors. Very mild weather in Europe is causing some concern.

Corn followed wheat early in the week, but then showed marked independence to the trend of the leading grain. Speculative interest is very limited in the market, but with the latter practically on a merchandising basis sentiment was more friendly as country offerings continued very light and the daily demand kept up with offerings.

SERVICES ARRANGED FOR ANOTHER WEEK

Program Announced for Emmanuel Baptist; Two Sermons Yesterday

Revival services at Emmanuel Baptist church will continue one more week, the Rev. S. T. Porter, pastor, announced today. D. R. Falkenberg, secretary of the Ohio Pocket Testament League, who was to speak Sunday morning, figured in an automobile accident north of Worthington and was unable to be here. Harry Fagan, of Cleveland, took his place in the pulpit.

In his sermon last night the Rev. Mr. Porter said:

"When we look into God's looking-glass the law—we see ourselves guilty before God. We see ourselves unfit to enter into His holy presence. But seeing our guilt reveals the need of cleansing. But did you ever hear of anybody washing himself with the mirror? No!

"But God has opened a fount of cleansing. The law points to the cross, where by faith in the shed blood of the Lamb of God, we are freed from the guilt of sin, and we receive the pardon from the curse of the law, which is—death."

There was one response to the altar call. Tonight the sermon will be on "Blessed Hope."

"Easy Money" Is the Wrong Idea

IT is the mistaken idea of some people that unless they earn a large salary or win some "easy money" they will not be able to enjoy anything beyond a mere living.

WE have a class who have learned the secret of getting ahead; they are able to meet their obligations and other emergencies, just because they have not been "FREE AND EASY" with their money.

A part of each dollar they earned was put aside.

CHICAGO VEGETABLE STORE IS WRECKED

Powerful Dynamite Bomb Thrown into West Side Shop

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—A powerful dynamite bomb exploded here today, reducing the one-story fruit and vegetable store of Sam Madonia to a mass of twisted wreckage.

Several persons were injured by flying bits of glass and plaster.

The explosion spread terror throughout a large area of the West Side, rousing sleeping families who hurried to the streets in fright.

Madonia's store and the stock it contained was completely obliterated.

Wreckage from the roof and walls and fruit and vegetables were hurled a block away; some of the flying debris smashed windows and tore off roofs.

A neighboring meat market and tailor shop were also wrecked.

Patrick J. Sherman, owner of the building, was blown from his bed and cut by flying glass. He was unable to give any reason for the place being bombed.

Wisconsin Wet Takes Part in Liquor Raids

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Representative Schafer, Republican, of Wisconsin, house wet, has for several months been accompanying police on prohibition raids in three precincts here, it was disclosed today.

"Surely, I've been doing considerable gumshoeing," he said "I want to see how prohibition works at first hand, and one of the best ways to do it is to accompany these police when they go out for liquor violators.

"I wish some people could see the ravings and crazed antics of those liquor drinkers. Yet in spite of these facts, the dry crusaders continue to rant that the federal prohibition laws result in temperance"

Man Held for Death of Dry Investigator

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 3—George H. Goggins, 30, is being held by police here today in connection with the death of Bert Donaldson, dry investigator, who was shot and killed at Atlanta, Ga., in 1926.

Goggins, who was arrested on a charge of automobile stealing, confessed to the murder yesterday, police said. He also confessed stealing 80 automobiles in all parts of the country. He said that his conscience bothered him, and the thoughts of the murder preyed on his mind.

Device To Talk with Men Trapped in "Sub"

WASHINGTON, Feb 3—Experiments are being conducted at the navy yard with a device to permit persons on a rescuing vessel to communicate with men trapped in a crippled submarine at the bottom of the ocean.

The tests have not yet been completed, Capt. Willis McDowell, chief engineer of the yard, said they have progressed far enough to indicate the device is practicable.

Arrest 3 in Attempt To Rob Mansfield Store

MANSFIELD Feb 3—Another attempted safe robbery had been frustrated here today with the arrest of three men who made an alleged attempt to rob the safe of the W. T. Grant Co. store yesterday.

The men gave their names as Charles Miller, Frank Carlson and James Romano, all of Cleveland.

Clyde Watts, watchman at the store, saw the men and called police.

BURY CANTILLON TODAY

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (ad.)

7 Hours in Bed and Not 7 Minutes' Sleep!

The Toll Acidity Takes

When you go to bed dog-tired and still can't sleep and you rise in the morning more tired than when you went to bed, it's a sign you're "acid." Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal which saps our strength and vitality and so taxes our nerves that we can't sleep at night or work efficiently during the day.

Magnesia Oxoids, developed in Germany by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Bradley's Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full.—Adv.

THREE MEN FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Two Arrested in Raid at House; Third Taken in Custody on Street

Wilbur Hogue, 34, was fined $100, and Frank Hogue, 50, was fined $20 in municipal court this morning following a raid last night by police at the home of Frank Hogue, 179 John st.

Wilbur Hogue pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquors when arraigned before Judge William R. Martin this morning. Frank Hogue was booked on a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct. He pleaded not guilty, but later changed his plea to guilty.

Police say several bottles and a jug were confiscated at the Frank Hogue home, when police searched the house last night, but as they had no warrant for the house, Hogue could not be charged with possession. Wilbur Hogue had liquor on his person, according to police, and was charged with possession.

Both men are being held in city prison and will be committed to county jail if the fines are not paid.

Sam Brady, 53, giving his address as 127 John st., was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. Police say he was arrested while walking on South Main st. last night, carrying a half pint of alleged whisky.

BELIEVE WATZL ALIVE

Theory Founded on Letters Accompanying Payments for Insurance

CLEVELAND, Feb. 3 — While search for Dr. Ernst Watzl, Cleveland chemist who has been missing under mysterious circumstances since his automobile was found burned last Nov. 6, near Pottstown, Pa., was concentrated in New York, Mrs. Watzl expressed hope here today of her husband's return.

Belief that Dr. Watzl still is alive and not a victim of death when his automobile was wrecked in Pennsylvania, was asserted through letters accompanying payments on the chemist's insurance which, according to experts, were written on Dr. Watzl's typewriter.

A search was conducted here today for persons who may have been responsible for the chemist's disappearance. A few confidential associates of Dr. Watzl are said to have known of a private office and studio maintained here by the chemist and these persons are sought as valuable witnesses.

SOVIET AND FRANCE REPORTED AT ODDS

Diplomatic Relations in Balance as Result of General's Disappearance

MOSCOW, Feb. 3—Diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and France are hanging in the balance, it was learned today.

Izvestia, semi-official government newspaper, issued a "warning to France today, declaring that normal diplomatic relations are "incompatible with provocative anti-Soviet acts with the aid of White Guards."

This harsh tone is believed to be a result of the disappearance in Paris of Gen. Alexei Koutiepoff, chief of the White Guard, composed of exiled officers of the former Russian imperial army.

Many Paris newspapers have openly accused the soviets of kidnaping the general, and according to information here, sentiment in favor of the former czarist general and against the Soviets is running high in Paris.

WOMAN BEHIND MOVE TO SWEEP OIL FIELD

Conspiracy Trial Seen as Climax of Her Fight To Clean Boom Towns

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 3—Behind the startling and sordid record built up by government witnesses in the federal court hearing on the liquor conspiracy indictment against 102 present and former officials of Pottawatomie county, and alleged distillers and joint keepers in the Seminole oil field, is the story of an undaunted woman.

Mrs. Ethel Rennert, builder and owner of the Rennert hotel at Earlsboro, may or may not be called to the stand—she is under subpoena—but public records indicate that the trial which entered its fifth day here today might fittingly be called the climax of her single-handed battle to clean up the oil boom towns.

A woman of considerable wealth, Mrs. Rennert surprised the oil field first by living there; second by building an expensively furnished three-story hotel with a bath in every room, and finally by announcing that booze and women were "out."

Testifying in the impeachment trial of Henry S. Johnston, former governor, a year ago, she described how she had repeatedly called on the executive with detailed reports on vice conditions in the oil fields of the state. She modestly took credit for two state investigations, each of which precipitated resignations of oil field town officials but little more.

FARM HOME BURNS

Veteran Liquor Smuggler Blames Coast Guard for Injuries

DETROIT, Feb. 3 — "Muskrat" Laframboisi, said by Windsor police to be noted as one of the first rum runners operating the Detroit river, is in Windsor today with injuries which he insists were caused by machine-gun fire from the customs border patrol.

Laframboisi, a Canadian citizen, was wounded on the Detroit river early today while he was on the Canadian side of the river. He said his car had gone through the ice and was making his way back to land on foot when the shooting occurred.

Custom patrol officials denied they had any report from their men of a shooting on the river.

WETS IN CONGRESS SEEK ORGANIZATION

Bi-Partisan Leadership Is Sought for Scattered Ranks

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Confident that the prohibition question will dominate congress for the present session, prominent wets today instituted a movement to bring about a bi-partisan leadership over their scattered ranks.

Having suffered because the wet forces have been an army with more generals than privates, the wets who see their first chance in years to make inroads on the drys are insistent upon an air tight organization.

The senate wets are virtually leaderless since Senators Bruce of Maryland and Edwards, Democrat of New Jersey, were defeated and Senator Edge, Republican of New Jersey, became ambassador to Paris.

Senator John J. Blaine, Republican of Wisconsin, is rapidly being recognized as the unofficial spokesman for the senate anti prohibitionists with Senator Millard Tydings, Democrat of Maryland, and Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, the most militant of the Democrats.

A fight for leadership of the house wets was temporarily settled when Representative Linthicum, Democrat of Maryland, was reelected chairman of the "wet bloc" and Representative James Beck, Republican of Pennsylvania, was named chairman of its executive committee.

WESLEYAN WOMEN DEBATERS ON TOUR

Ohio Team Opens Series Today with Contest at Pittsburgh

DELAWARE, Feb. 3—Ohio Wesleyan women's varsity debate team is now in the east, where they will engage in a series of three debates, the first with Pittsburgh university at Pittsburgh Pa., today. The Ohio Wesleyan women's team has not lost a debate away from home for two years.

The team includes Miss Margaret Rinehart, West Alexandria, executive president of Women's Student Government association, Miss Rosalyn Wones, Warsaw, Ind., junior representative of Women's Student Government, and Miss Helen Mowry, Derry, Pa., members of last year's team, which was undefeated on its eastern tour.

Following the Pittsburgh university debate, the team will meet American university and George Washington university at Washington, D. C. Feb 5 and 7 respectively.

All the debates will argue the proposition that it is an unsound policy to provide a liberal arts college education for the average secondary school graduate who seeks it.

The women's debating team at Ohio Wesleyan takes a trip similar to the one outlined for this year annually.

The British and French military experts sent to Berlin to keep an eye on Germany's disarmament as directed by the Versailles treaty, is to be withdrawn at once, and thus another affront to German pride is soon to be removed.

Italy has raised her navy budget to $77,682,022, an increase of $1,526,800, which means something where labor is as cheap as in Italy. Another naval reduction conference and the whole world will be flat broke getting ready for it.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company, as indicated recently, is preparing to lay a telephone cable across the Atlantic to link this country and Europe, the plan being to land the cable in the western part of Great Britain. "Ah! Are you there?"

The members of New York's Century club are justified in resenting the charge of Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart that they are gin drinkers. It's a gratuitous insult to charge that their taste for liquor has degenerated to that degree.

The story that the American delegates to the London naval conference had been requested by President Hoover to refrain from partaking of wines or other intoxicants while abroad had one characteristic common to a number of other stories with an alleged White House connection recently circulated—its utter lack of truth.

The very unique British conception of parity seems to be two-thirds for Britain and one-third for the United States, and the distressing phase of the situation is that our delegates at the London conference are liable to fall for it "in the interests of harmony." Apparently when there is any sacrificing to be done in the interests of harmony, we are expected to be the goat.

A resident of the New York Bronx, who later demonstrated that he was born in Genoa, Italy, September 29, 1829, scorned an ambulance, after being hit by an automobile, and insisted on walking to his home where the bad contusions he suffered in the accident were cared for on the insistence of the ambulance attendants whose offer of transportation he had refused. Occasionally nature turns out a man who, at a hundred, can undergo an experience which would cause the death of many a man of half his age.

Believes in Equal Rights.

A Chicago husband evidently takes the view that, since woman has become emancipated as expressed by her dress, her smoking, her drinking, and her entrance into almost all lines of man's work, there is no reason why she should be exempted through masculine sense of chivalry from the fulfilment of contracts made by her. At any rate, he has sued his wife for the carrying out of an ante-nuptial agreement by the terms of which she was to assign to him $110,000.

Just before the time of their marriage last July, the husband was a clothing salesman, whose employment forced him to work nights. That he might spend more of his time with her, he alleges in his bill, his prospective wife urged him to give up his employment and go into business for himself, that he might be his own master, promising him $110,000 from a $250,000 settlement made on her by her first husband. His prospective wife had already received $30,000 on the settlement, which came to her at the rate of $200 a month and $5,000 at the end of each year, and he was to have one-half of the remaining $220,000.

The husband gave up his job, bought an automobile for their honeymoon tour of the country, a ring for her valued at $600, a brooch at $325 and spent $1,500 in furnishing their home. He was out his money, and out his job, and then discovered that he was out his part of the former husband's settlement, as the wife refused to go through with the ante-nuptial agreement, and the situation was complicated when his wife invited her brother, the latter's wife and their two grown daughters to live with them. Life became unbearable, and he left home, but called his wife up, saying that he would return when her relatives left. She, so he says, told him not to bother. Hence the suit.

This Chicago man's suit is the first of the kind instituted in Cook county. Few like it are of record in the country. The course of the husband may not find favor, especially since the alleged agreement was for the division of money coming from the source it did, but as a matter of right, why should not the wife be held, if the facts are as set out by the husband? If woman really wants equal rights, why should she not be ready and willing to accord them?

To Conscript All Resources.

National Commander Bodenhamer, of the American legion, is persistent in his advocacy of legislation by which, in time of war, to conscript alike capital, industry and labor; in fact, all the man power and all the resources of the nation.

Undoubtedly, there is still resentment in the hearts of many veterans of the World war over the fact that while the risking of their lives and the hardships they endured were financially recognized with pay of a dollar a day, a goodly percentage of those who remained at home and encountered only the ordinary dangers of every-day life profited in that time of the government's extremity, many of them shamefully.

There is no question but what there is justification for such a feeling. To be frank about the thing, the salaried workers and members of some of the professions are about the only ones against whom, as classes, the profiteering charge could not be sustained. And there is no question regarding the need for legislation which will prevent profiteering in any future time of national stress, whether it be attempted by capital, labor, business or industry, but whether the plan we understand Commander Bodenhamer favors would not prove more of a handicap than an asset in the successful prosecution of a great war is an open question, and it would be nothing less than folly to follow it in a minor one, where there would not be the slightest need for disturbing the business and industry of the country.

As we understand the national commander's plan, it contemplates not only government control, but government management as well. What government management means is still fresh in the national mind as the result of the awful mess that Mr. McAdoo made of the railroads. If the plan means, as some hold, that the management of capital and industry would be taken over by army and navy officers, we here at home have reason to know fairly well about how far production would get under such management, and we are not taking any fling herein at the ability of our regular army and navy officers at that. In their own lines, they have demonstrated ability, but that can not be taken as surety that they would make good in lines in which they have had no experience.

It is hardly probable, however, that the big percentage of men selected for management would be selected from either the regular army or navy. It would be much as it was during our participation in the World war, when civilians were put into uniforms and given tasks for which they were no more fitted than a ditch digger for watch-making.

In this connection we recall one of the officers sent here to facilitate the handling of materials, we believe, for the manufacture of the big gun carriages built by the Marion Steam Shovel company. There was a major on the actual construction work who knew his job, a highly-trained man, but the qualifications of the officer we have in mind, we were informed at the time, were that he was a good Democrat and a fairly good dentist, and he hadn't been here three months until he wanted to tell the local street railway people how their lines should be run, attempted to censor the press and give the city generally the benefit of his experience.

We very gravely fear that, in the event of a major war, should the commander's plan be in force, the resources of the land would not be passed to the highly-trained officers of the army and navy—they would be needed where they belong, at the front—but to officers of the stamp of this probably well-meaning one to whom we have referred, who left his dentist's chair to assist in the work of constructing carriages for our heavy rifles.

Government control of our resources in time of war? Yes. Government management? Never.

A Los Angeles court sentenced the author of "Bad Babies" to ninety days in jail and five members of the cast were fined $300 each, the jury having decided that the play was indecent. They must have been bad babies indeed if they were too raw for Los Angeles to stand for them.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" was played by the United States navy band and sung by two sopranos to members of the house in Washington, one day last week, to demonstrate that it was not difficult to sing as it has been revised, but revised or not revised, just about the same 99.44 per cent. of our patriotic citizenship will probably continue to do the customary ta-ta-taing after the first verse.

The women's patriotic conference on national defense, held in Washington last week, in which forty patriotic societies were represented, passed a resolution urging the delegates of the United States to the London five-power conference to refrain from agreeing to any naval reduction which does not guarantee this country parity: ship for ship and ton for ton. It's good to know that the patriotic women of the land have not succumbed to the curse of pacificism.

It's something of a coincidence that the same day a negro was burned to death down in Georgia by a mob for attacking and killing a young white girl another negro was presented a gold medal out in Sioux City and proclaimed Iowa's greatest hero in 1929 for having gone to the rescue of two white girls and saved them from harm by engaging two white men, killing one and beating the other into helplessness in the fight which ensued. Neither crime nor heroism is confined to any one color.

The Madrid scientists, who went to Morocco to dig up the skeleton of a dinosaur recently discovered there, have arrived at the conclusion that the remains are those of a hay-making machine abandoned during the Riff war by some farmer, the teeth of which, protruding through the sand were mistaken for ribs, a conclusion to which they are the more firmly committed by the finding of the name on the machine of a well-known Chicago corporation which manufacturers agricultural implements. If it were intended as a hoax, it was a mighty mean one to play on a lot of dignified scientists.

Stammering Often a Habit.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Sometimes stammering is brought on by some injury or disease. Usually it begins early in life, even with the first attempts to talk.

It is influenced very much by surroundings, or by any emotion. Fear or fatigue will be found to make it more pronounced. Young men and women are extremely sensitive to this difficulty of speech, when once it has become a fixed habit.

There is a difference between stammering and stuttering. In the latter there is a sort of spasm, particularly when an attempt is made to pronounce the explosive sounds necessary for naming the letters b, d, g, k, p and t.

The treatment for this difficulty of stammering is a matter of education. In the case of young children who have no serious physical defect, or a disease like St. Vitus' dance or paralysis of the muscles of speech, it is possible to overcome stammering through patient and persistent effort.

If it is found that a young child has difficulty to pronounce certain words, he should be thoroughly examined to see if he has any discoverable physical defect. Enlarged tonsils and adenoids may bring on this trouble. Intense nervousness and a deformity in the nose or throat are often accompanied by speech defects.

The cause should be ascertained and corrected. Then the child should be encouraged to overcome the speech defect. He should never be made fun of or criticised. Gain his confidence and do everything in a sympathetic manner to assist him to gain his self-control.

Memorizing short poems or prose is a very good practice. Reading aloud, very slowly at first, and being made to correct each error of speech and pronunciation, will help him to gain self-assurance. This comes very gradually, but it is the only way to give the child poise. By reciting to one or two friendly persons the child is given confidence and he will gradually overcome the difficulty.

Both stammerer and teacher will have to exercise much patience. To the young man or woman coming into maturity, such speech defect is extremely mortifying, and the habit, for it is a habit, should be broken when the child is young.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

E. D. D. Q—How can I remove freckles from my face?

A—Try applying equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide to the skin.

• • •

M. J. S. Q—What causes puffiness of the eyelids and what can be done to correct the trouble? The patient is seventeen and has had this trouble for three years. He has had kidney trouble.

A—This is usually indicative of kidney trouble. A careful urinalysis should help to make a definite diagnosis and then proper treatment can be outlined. Late hours and eyestrain are also possible causes.

• • •

H. M. Q—What causes tiny blisters on my feet at the first sign of warm weather?

A—This is probably eczema. Your diet and elimination may be at fault. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

• • •

J. V. S. Q—What is the cause and what will clear up pimples on the shoulder blades?

A—These blemishes usually denote improper diet and poor elimination. Correct your diet, avoid too many sweets and keep the system clear.

• • •

SALLY. Q—What do you advise for a condition where the eyelids are swollen and puffed, over the eyes rather than underneath?

A—My advice would be to have your doctor advise you after examination. The trouble may be due to several causes: the kidneys, possible eyestrain, etc., may be at the source.

• • •

E. J. Q—What causes the presence of small red veins in the nose—especially at the sides?

2—What causes small white spots under the eyes?

A—This trouble is caused by various disturbances—the digestion is often a factor. Correct your diet and keep the system clear.

2—These blemishes may be due to acne. In this case also the diet and elimination are important.—Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

BACKTRACKING.

The senate committee on privileges and elections has reported unanimously that Mr. Joseph R. Grundy is entitled to retain the seat to which he was recently appointed by the governor of Pennsylvania. No other conclusion could have been reached under an intelligent interpretation of the constitutional provisions and the Pennsylvania statute governing appointments to fill senate vacancies. Governor Fisher had the power to act, and the certificate which he issued to Mr. Grundy was beyond attack.

But if the senate accepts the committee's judgment it must confess at the same time its violation of the constitution and its denial of a state's right to equal representation through the lynching at the door three years ago of Colonel Frank L. Smith, an appointee from Illinois. Colonel Smith was summarily excluded after presenting a commission from the governor entitling him to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Senator McKinley. The unexpired term was to run out on March 4, 1927. At the election of 1926 Colonel Smith had been chosen for the six-year term beginning March 4, 1927, and ending March 3, 1933. It was charged that he had made, or that others had made for his benefit, in the Republican primary preceding the election, expenditures which many senators considered excessive. On the ground of such expenditures, which violated no state or federal law, he was later barred—in January, 1928—from the senate for the elective term and his seat was declared vacant. But his appointment had no connection with the primary or the election of 1926, and his constitutional qualifications to be a senator were not disputed.

If the senate was justified in lynching Colonel Smith on a governor's appointment, it would be, under its peculiar logic, justified in lynching Mr. Grundy on a similar appointment. Senator Nye is, in fact, insisting on this parallel procedure, on the claim that Mr. Grundy raised money to be spent in the 1926 primary for the purpose of nominating Governor Fisher. In Mr. Nye's view, if the senate wants to be extralegally virtuous, no limitation can be put on its super-devotion to virtue.

The senate was dominated in the Smith and Vare exclusions by the nightriding hysteria and passionate partisanship of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri. It is now recovering its balance sufficiently to backtrack on its earlier assaults on constitutional rights. The governor of a state has the authority to appoint, and the certificate which he issues is valid for admission to the senate if the person named is constitutionally qualified. His title may be subsequently attacked for corruption, fraud or other illegality, and he may be expelled if he is thought to be an undesirable senator. But nothing excuses the violent usurpations of which the senate was guilty when in 1927, 1928 and 1929 it deprived the states of Illinois and Pennsylvania of representation, ascertained by due process of law and guaranteed to them by the terms of the federal constitution.—New York Herald Tribune.

SACK-CLOTH AND HAIR-SHIRTS.

The allusion to mental hair-shirts in Mr. Hoover's now famous letter to the president emeritus of Ohio State university may have gone over the head of some of our readers. As an aide memoire, we offer the following interesting facts gleaned from an article on G. Cyrian Alston, an authority on early Christian history:

The cloth from which hair-shirts were made took its name from Cilicia, where it was woven, whence the Latin "cilicium" and the French "cilice." Scriptural sack-cloth, a symbol of mourning and penance, was probably of the same material. When Christianity was young and Christians were enthusiastic, wearing hair-cloth shirts was common among the ascetics, as a means of bodily mortification and an aid in resisting the temptation of the flesh. Ordinary laymen aped their religious betters. St. Jerome mentions the habit of the latter of wearing hair-shirts under their luxurious raiment as an antidote to ostentation. Cassian disapproved of hair-shirts for monks on the ground that if worn outside they savored of vanity; while if worn next to the flesh, they interfered with manual exercise. The religious orders of the Middle ages continued, however, to use them in imitation of the early ascetics, aspirants to the perfect life. The fact that Charlemagne was buried in the hair-shirt he had worn in life shows that the laity still followed the practice. A few religious orders still wear hair-shirts. The habit of mortifying the flesh, among laymen, appears to have changed from the material out of which their raiment is made to the styles in which it is cut.

The use Mr. Hoover made to the hairshirt in his letter was symbolic, when he mentioned the hair-shirts imposed upon his patience by his critics. The revival of Cilician undergarments for ordinary citizens probably would be opposed by the textile industry, already hard pressed by the competition of cotton substitutes; but what an excellent thing it would be for the average soul if it still wore under its silks and satins a scratchy reminder that all is vanity and that the grave is not its goal.—Detroit Free Press.

Benjamin Franklin.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most famous of American scientists was Benjamin Franklin. Born in Boston on January 17, 1706, Franklin quickly developed by reason of natural shrewdness and habitual industry into a successful business man. He early displayed an interest in natural phenomena, and was gifted with acute powers of observation which he employed to the best advantage throughout a long distinguished career.

Franklin is remembered to this day for one homely invention, the "Pennsylvania fireplace," which is in common use today under the name of the "Franklin Stove." He conferred a great boon upon generations past and generations still unborn through the invention of bifocal spectacles. With a mind incurably inquisitive, he studied hundreds of questions having to do with agriculture, hygiene, medicine and architecture; and by his shrewd suggestions anticipated many later discoveries.

Franklin contributed many of his observations to the Junto, which is supposed to have been founded in 1727. Out of this society came the famous American Philosophical society, which owes its organization in 1743 primarily to Franklin. Many leading scientists of the day belonged to this society—one of the thirteen charter members, for example, being Thomas Godfrey, Sr., the inventor of the quadrant. In 1769, Franklin was made president of the society and held this post until his death on April 17, 1790.

Franklin has been justly termed the "first illustrious American inventor." By his discoveries in electricity, he won world renown. Electrical experiments he witnessed in Boston in 1746 gripped his interest, and before long he was experimenting with some very elementary electrical instruments sent to the Philadelphia library by Peter Collinson, of London, a fellow of the Royal society.

To Franklin is generally attributed the distinction between two kinds of electricity, positive and negative. He devoted much time, in company with a small group of associates, making trivial and amusing experiments with electricity. His chief claim to fame rests upon his proof that lightning and electricity are identical. Although some question has recently been raised by scientists as to whether Franklin actually performed the famous kite experiment, it is rather generally credited that Franklin did actually draw lightning from the clouds, which ran down the moist cord to which the kite was attached and electrified a key, by means of which a Leyden jar was charged.

Although Franklin's letters to Collinson attracted little attention when read before the Royal society, they won instant response when published in pamphlet form. The savants of France were excited by Franklin's discoveries, which were generally credited in Europe. Everywhere was quoted the saying of a French poet, writing in Latin: "He snatched the lightning from heaven." Franklin is credited with originating the idea of protecting buildings by means of lightning conductors. He received honorary degrees from Oxford and St. Andrew's universities, and was made a fellow and awarded the gold medal of the Royal society.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Feb. 3.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Lay watching a snowfall through a window and dropped off into a hideous nightmare, awakening with my head caught in a night table. Breakfasted with Bide Dudley, who is writing another play, and Amos and Andy, the radio boys, called and we had a long talk.

Cames Charles A. Hughes, the Detroit pamphleteer, to show me the photograph of his beautiful young daughter and drove him to Baird Leonard's and then with my wife to see Kathleen and Charles Norris, on their annual visit from California, and a distinguished gathering there.

In the evening to a theatrical opening and saw Patricia Ziegfeld in an evening frock, having become almost a grown-up lady. After the play with some others to a night place in Harlem, but so depressing we left in ten minutes. So home to bed.

First night theatrical regulars miss the veteran Percy Hammond, who has packed his portable and is voyaging around the world with his wife. While ostensibly on "a leave of absence" there are rumors he has permanently abandoned reviewing and upon his return will devote himself to the leisurely writing of a book or so along with an occasional magazine article.

• • •

Hammond, who is fifty-seven, has attended more opening nights than any living critic. He has been a familiar figure, portly and ruddy-cheeked, drooping in his down front aisle chair year after year. To many he expressed a half-lidded indifference and his expression rarely changed yet not a word or gesture escaped him. He loved to juggle words and phrases and his euphonious eulogies have sent many admirers thumbing the dictionary. Hammond was born in Cadiz, Ohio, married a school-day sweetheart of that village and scored his first conspicuous success as a critic in Chicago. He was reputed the highest salaried reviewer in town.

Washington Mews, that row of shambling barns made over into pleasant studios, is resenting the invasion of a taxi stand. For years it has been the last refuge of romanticism—a cloister, untainted by gasoline smells, for artists, writers and sculptors. Many have become distinguished. It stretches from University place to Fifth avenue and is a replica of one of those queer Old world turns where one steps out of a mighty jangle into churchyard quiet.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Mary Agnes Hamilton, English woman recently elected to the house of commons, is visiting in America. She says she finds people here more interested in the habits of dress of women in parliament than in their habits of mind. Strange how most people are interested in the superficial rather than in the serious. Mrs. Hamilton has some ideas as to what women can and can not do. She believes women's chief contribution to public life is in the matter of decoration. Women are indeed more decorative than men. She says:

"People thought at first that the entrance of women into the world of politics and the professions would mean that women would 'raise the standard of morals.' It hasn't, and it never will. This is the reason: While women lived in seclusion, they were the guardians of morals, and morals are coming to mean something vastly wider and greater. They are coming in reality to mean the entire field of social conduct. Instead of trying to whip men into line with the old idea of moral conduct only as it concerned sex, women accepted the single standard, but applied the measuring stick of right and wrong to the whole of human conduct. They will continue to do that, and in that sense, their entrance into the world of affairs is very significant indeed."

Every grandmother ought to have a career. So says Mrs. Herbert Pell, New York woman who, now that she is a grandmother, has returned to professional painting. Radio listeners, not long ago, heard Dr. Fosdick, able New York preacher, speak on the subject, "Pull Yourself Together." We seem to be busy today, building up a defense either for not doing anything or for the wrong things which we do. We blame complexes and inherited tendencies and "our particular case" for all our misdeeds. Mostly we are just seeking alibis, just refusing to face the facts in and about our lives. We don't need the services of a physician, a neurologist, a psychoanalyst half so much as we need to "pull ourselves together."

Mt. Gilead Cops Cage Games

MT. GILEAD, Feb. 3—Before a crowd which filled the Crestline gym to capacity, the Mt. Gilead basket tossers came from behind to win from Crestline 29 to 26 at Crestline Saturday night. In the opening quarters Crestline seemed assured of an easy victory scoring 13 points to Mt. Gilead's 7. After cutting down the lead to 4 points, the score at the half being Crestline 15, Mt. Gilead 11, the Mt. Gilead boys stepped into a 23 to 22 lead at the end of the third quarter. A basket batted in by Howard from the foul line on a jump ball started Mt. Gilead's recovery and rattled the Crestline defense. Two more field goals in quick succession by Richardson still further demoralized them. Leading 29 to 23, the Mt. Gilead boys attempted rather ineffectively to "freeze" the ball in the remaining few minutes of the contest. The final score was Mt. Gilead 29, Crestline 26.

Girls Win

The Mt. Gilead girls, trailed at the half 7 to 5 but drew away in the third quarter to a lead which was not threatened thereafter. This game broke a long standing tie as their game last year ended 11 to 11 and the year before they tied at 10 all. Fate for Porter at guard was the only substitution made by Mt. Gilead.

Coach Bender was not with his teams having been called to Loudenville by the serious illness of his father. Leland Powell, principal of the high school managed the teams.

Kenton Girls Win Tilt

KENTON, Feb. 3—Kenton high school basketball clubs lost and won contests on foreign courts over the week-end, the parochials losing to the Springfield Central Catholics 23 to 24, and the Kenton high school beating the strong Bluffton club 20 to 14.

Both games were close throughout and the Springfield tilt was reported as one of exceeding roughness. The locals led the downstaters up until the last two minutes of play when Springfield tied the score and her left guard shot through a foul tip just as the whistle ended the game.

In the Bluffton fracas, Kenton led in the opening two quarters by only a narrow margin and at the culmination of the third frame the score was tied at 11 all. A brilliant last quarter offensive of the locals enabled them to pile up nine counters while the best Bluffton could do was three points.

What the Bluffton boys failed to accomplish, the girls' team made up for and in grand fashion. They handed the Kenton girls club an overwhelming 33 to 3 defeat.

"Each cough hurt ME more than it hurt Johnny"

"My elder sister's boy was staying with us for the Christmas vacation. So when he caught a cough I felt doubly anxious. I just had to make him well again. I immediately gave him some Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup, which I myself used before. It worked as well with Johnny as it did with me—better! And Johnny actually liked the syrup—he said 'It's like candy'. He lost his cold completely in a couple of days."

The driver of the bus, Ross Denzer, and his helper, James Henry, were severely criticized by Mayor Schuler when testimony revealed that they had been negligent in the operation of the bus.

Charm of Music

NOWHERE does music have a more rightful place than in the funeral service. Its power to soothe the emotions, to give expression to the deepest feelings, makes it an indispensable part of the ceremony. It is because we recognise this fact that we give careful attention to the musical side of our service. Programs are carefully planned to make an appropriate and impressive background. In planning this we most naturally consult the wishes of the family.

ON WITH THE DANCE

A True Story of the Younger Set

THE Friday evening dancing party was the week's high spot for the young folks of a certain small country club. A four-piece orchestra always supplied the rhythm until older members conceived the idea that mechanical music would serve the youngsters just as well—and cost less.

Accordingly, a music machine was installed. The plan worked once, but the next Friday the little band triumphantly returned to the job.

"What's wrong with your new music box?" a father asked. "Wouldn't you rather dance to Whiteman and Vallee records than to a tin-pan band?"

Junior shook his head:

"Mechanical music is fine at home but it hasn't the right kick for a dance."

What is true of dancing must be equally true of the theatre. Are YOU getting YOUR money's worth in the theatre?

SCOTLAND YARD GOES OUT AFTER ITS MAN

CHAPTER [illegible]

But all Viv's terror seemed to come back when at last Jimmie stood up to go. Her face became white and her eyes widened with fear.

"Jimmie boy, are you sure it's safe?"

"Yes," said Jimmie, assuming a confidence he was not feeling. "I know I've slipped the No. 1 lot for the time. And I didn't see Sam or his little ferret as I came in. I expect he's thought better of it and cleared out."

"Shall I ring up H. H. and get him to come round and go back with you? He's at a hotel near here tonight so as to be on the phone. I don't think they're wise to him yet."

"No, no, Viv. I'm all right."

"Jimmie!" The girl stood up suddenly facing him by the fireside "Jimmie, you're safe here, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Well—why not stay here?" She stood facing him, her alluring foreign-looking face tilted up toward his. To Jimmie suddenly she looked the most wonderful thing in the world. All his old passion for her rushed back on him; and in that moment he knew there never had been anybody but Viv.

"You did love me once, Jimmie," she said softly.

"But," stammered Jimmie, "I—I can't stay. Think of our job tomorrow. Think of * * *"

To his surprise Viv burst into tears. She had been living under a great strain, physical, mental and emotional for the last week, and now it suddenly came to a climax. But chief of all was the emotional strain, or she had discovered in the last days that she wanted Jimmie after all—always had wanted Jimmie. She had undertaken this work with him simply to help him and to be near him. She knew his weaknesses, his vanity and his cowardice, and yet she desired him for her own.

"What—what's up?" cried Jimmie seizing her arms.

In a moment Viv had gained control over herself.

His "Blind" Love

"Are you blind, Jimmie?" she whispered. "Don't you know what every one seems to know; H. H. and even Sam?"

"Oh," Jimmie had known, but somehow had not allowed himself to admit it. He hardened himself. "Viv, honestly, don't let's talk about anything tonight."

"All right," replied Viv dully, and turned away to stare into the fire.

Jimmie, after peeping cautiously round the side of the window curtain, went to the door.

Then he stopped abruptly, came back, and seizing Viv, kissed her with passion and hunger.

"Oh!" cried the girl in a new voice, as he dropped her and went to the door once more. "Then—then you do?"

"Of course I do, you little fool," said the man, his fingers on the handle. "Perhaps the blind have been leading the blind!"

Then he went.

Jimmie walked rapidly down Edgware road. He was apparently unconscious of a taxi that had emerged from a side road and was now crawling up behind, as if looking for fares. But Jimmie was rarely unconscious of what went on round him; particularly since he knew, as he did now, that No. 1 had him marked. A queer sense of humor took charge of him, an expression of happiness that pervaded him after feeling Viv's lips under his. He paused by a lamp and wrote something on a sheet of his notebook, folded it up, addressed it and had moved on, before the taxi caught up with him.

Further on he stopped once more, this time conveniently near a policeman. He was not running the risk of being attacked openly.

"Taxi, sir," queried the driver at last coming up level.

"Are you engaged?" asked Rezaire with caution.

"No, sir."

"Then I'll engage you."

"Right sir." The flag tinkled down. "Where to?"

"Do you know the Coin de Paradis restaurant in Warsaw st.?"

The man as nearly as possible started, but said: "I'll find it, sir."

"Good! Well, I'm not going myself," smiled Jimmie, handing him the little note, "but I want you to take this note there, and ask for a gentleman called No. 1. Here's five bob, and * * *"

But with a snarl of rage, the man cast an apprehensive glance at the policeman, snatched at the note and drove rapidly off without even bothering about the money.

Jimmie, smiling thoughtfully, vanished down a side street. He felt pleased with himself at the incident and nearly laughed out loud. For inside the note was penciled: "Love and kisses to No. 1 from his own little Jimmie."

At the Vine Again

Rezaire arrived some while later by cautious methods at the Vine private door, let himself in and went silently upstairs. He entered his room with a sigh of relief. Before switching on the light—for he knew all the tricks—he locked the door, crossed the room to the window which he always kept fastened while out, opened it to air the room for a while and pulled down the blind. Then at last he snapped up the switch—and his mouth fell open with a wild exclamation of terror.

Sitting on the bed, knife in hand and an evil grin on his face, was Sam.

Two's Company

Jimmy Rezaire dropped his hand at once to his hip pocket, but Sam snapped in a fierce whisper:

"I can chuck this through your throat before you can get it out."

Jimmie faltered, frozen with terror. Sam, lounging over with his long, evil knife ready, took Jimmie's gun from his pocket and threw it contemptuously on the bed.

"Two's company, eh?" he observed as he sat down again. "Say you didn't think we'd meet again, didja? You thought I'd go back to the States like a good little boy? I suppose you thought, too, that I didn't know of your bolthole here? Well, I'm as good a trailer as you are, see?"

Jimmie did not bother to ask how he had found out. The thing was he had done so—and he saw murder in Sam's eyes. He tried to collect his wits to deal with the situation, but a wild fright had scattered them headlong.

In a Perilous Position

Sam was talking. He talked through his teeth, and under his words there ran a current of burning revenge which had found its victim, and primitive cruelty which at last had an object.

He talked, while his enemy stood silent, his fascinated eyes always on the shining knife, of how Jimmie had betrayed him and left him to the police. He talked of all he had done for Jimmie, conveniently forgetting the scores of times that Jimmie's quick brain had saved him. He talked with pent-up hatred of that morning's encounter, when Jimmie had come between him and his desire.

"By God!" he said, still in the low, threatening tones, "by the time I've finished with you, Viv won't be able to think of you except as a hospital exhibit. * * * Stand still or I'll begin now!" he threatened, as Jimmie stirred slightly at mention of the girl's name. * * * "I'm going to cut you up like a nigger once showed me, and, after that, you won't bother me. Then, I'll have Viv. I'll teach her to call me over like she did. Do you know what I'm going to do to that piece? I'm going to * * *"

"Shut up!" said Jimmie, sharply. The mention of Viv, from whom he had just come, seemed to give him courage. To his surprise, Sam did shut up, momentarily disconcerted.

Jimmie had an idea. Sam was banking too much on his fear of moving and on his own skill with the knife. If he could snap the light out, he might just get the gun from the bed before Sam got it, and before Sam's knife got him a slender chance. And, if he succeeded, it would probably mean murder; but anything was better than torture at the hands of Sam.

Mysterious Happenings

He went suddenly cold as Sam got up at that moment and walked over to him, balancing his blade between his fingers. He tried to leap for the light switch, but not a muscle moved to his will. He was again chained by terror.

With the air of an inquisitive doctor, Sam pressed the point of the knife against the other's chest, till Jimmie shrank suddenly as the steel penetrated the cloth and just pierced the skin. He did this two or three times in varying parts of the body, laughing evilly as Jimmie quivered from the terror of the touch rather than from actual pain.

"Just reconnoitering," volunteered Sam, pleasantly. "Going to have a real dig soon; but first I'm going to stop your mouth."

He moved over to the washstand by the window to get a towel, but he faced Jimmie all the time.

At the window he paused reflectively. "Or how'd it be," he whispered, as if the idea had just struck him, "if I cut your little tongue out? Save me trouble, and I've often wondered what sort of noise a man would make."

Jimmie nearly felt sick. He must do something—must make a fight for life. His knees were shaking, he felt sure his terror would not allow him to move; yet he tried to calculate the distance from his left hand to the switch. And at any rate, Sam was now by the window, further almost than he was from the revolver on the bed.

As he saw quick decision come into Sam's eyes, he made a superhuman effort; and jumped. A whistling gasp of pent-up fear left his chest, though he did not know he had made it, as his trembling fingers leaped toward the switch.

He saw Sam's knife jerk back to throw in a terrible silence—then several things happened at once * * *

First, distinct in the stillness, there sounded a muffled "Phtt"; then Sam's arm suddenly paused in its swift upward movement as if caught by an invisible hand; and his forehead seemed all in a moment to turn ghastly red, as though a great patch of skin had been peeled from it. In the same instant Jimmie's fingers closed on the switch and darkness flickered down on the scene, followed by a sudden snap as the spring blind unaccountably jerked up to the roller * * *

Next minute Jimmie found himself, with his stomach thudding up and down, lying on the bed with his hand around the blessed revolver, and the lingering vision of Sam's scarlet forehead mirrored against the darkness of the room.

But the room itself was as silent as death * * *

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

ME and Jubilee woke up yesterday morning wondering what a warrant is and what it will do to us if Mush's wife gets one out for us. I don't see why she should be sore, because it was her own fault that she rolled to the bottom of the steps. If she had not of went up there when Nibs and String were fighting on the top of the steps she would not have rolled down to the bottom with them. It is her business to see that nothing happens to the schoolhouse and having two boys fighting on the steps wouldn't of hurt it any.

When I was milking the cows and the bunch was in the barn and Feeble and Younie and Maggie came in I was saying that I couldn't see why Mush's wife was so sore, and Feeble said of course I couldn't but she probably was sore. She said nobody could see why she was sore when my unkle spanked her, but she was. So then I asked [illegible] his brother was getting along and we talked about something else. She thinks she is too smart. My unkle ain't back yet. Feeble said he probly ran so far in half an hour that it is taking him all this time to walk back. Or, she said, he probly found himself so far away when he stopped running that he made up his mind that the shortest way would be to [illegible] the rest of the way around [illegible] When we went in the [illegible] my mother if she was going to wear her new coat today and my mother said she thought not. Feeble said she'd bet if my mother put it on and went to church in it and pulled it kinda tight around her she bet she could make the preacher quit his wife, because she certainly does look devilish in it. My mother looked so pleased that it made me wish she had more sense. When we were coming from Sunday school we met my mother on the way to church, and when I got home my father was standing on the edge of Annabelle Lee's skirt to keep her out of trouble whilst he was getting the dinner. We were early so we all went around to see if Miss Farmer was better where my father kicked her. She was. Anyhow she said she was.

Today was Monday, and the storekeepers have got a lot of valentines in their windows strung on strings and a lot of others in boxes that look like they would cost a heap of [illegible] I saw a pretty good one for a [illegible] and two-bits, which is all I [illegible] want to and told the [illegible] one like it [illegible] I would [illegible]

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

"Greens Expedition" Is a Complete Success

MARY squeezed my arm at my promise that "nobody should get her," and I felt that she comprehended the silent amplification of that promise which was in my mind. But there was no opportunity for more words upon the subject of Philip Veritzen's oppression, even if either of us had wished to utter them, for the boys were dancing up and down with impatience at our tardiness in coming to their picnic fire.

"Mums!" Junior's voice was almost a wail, "everything will be spoiled if you don't hurry."

"Mary!" shouted her young brother reproachfully. "I thought you said you were starved. You don't act very starved to me."

"Don't I?" Mary retorted, "Watch me; I'm a hungry panther, and I'm coming to eat everything up."

She advanced toward them in a succession of little leaping runs, and I noted, as I had done so often before, the lithe grace of her movements. The boys squealed with delight as she pounced upon them, and for the next few minutes we ate with the wonderful appetites and appreciation of those who have spent hours in the open air, while I mentally echoed Roderick's wistful query when we had finished the meal and were packing up the picnic things in the smallest possible compass for stowing away in the bottom of the car.

"Do we have to go back, now?" he asked, and there was in his voice more than the ordinary wish of a small boy to prolong an enjoyable outing. There was the realization—unconscious, perhaps—of the woods' experiences, which he had missed and with a little tug at my throat I resolved to make up those things to the child as much as I could while he was with us.

"Must we, Mums?" Junior chimed in perfunctorily, with the inevitable desire of a child to snatch at any chance to prolong a pleasure. But I knew that my son was too familiar with family customs to have any hope of staying longer.

Junior's Secret

"Yes, we must hurry back, now," I told them firmly, "but you know, we're going to have two more wonderful trips next week" —I looked at Junior significantly.

"O—oh! yes, I know, the Christmas——" he clapped his hand over his mouth at my look of warning. "Gee!" he mumbled when had released his lips again, "I almost gave away the s'prise."

"I'll tell the world you did Junior," Mary laughed while Roderick looked at his cousin wide-eyed. "Better lock up that mouth of yours if you can't keep it closed better than that."

"I won't forget again, you bet your boots," Junior promised fervently. "Hurry up, Rod, let's get out of here. This is nothing to what we're going to do next week."

He swaggered toward the car, the importance of his secret so pompously investing him and so palpably impressing Roderick that Mrs. Ticer, Mary and I kept our faces straight with difficulty, and Mary plunged volubly into a plan for disposing the holly in the car with the least discomfort to any of us.

"Suppose we pack as much as possible on the running board in the luggage carrier and cover it with that rubber trunk case," she said "Then nobody'll know what we have and perhaps trace this lovely secret place of ours—I mean of Mrs. Ticer's," she amended apologetically.

The Underwoods' Return

"The first word was all right, Mary," Mrs. Ticer laughed, "I've always meant to share it with you folks."

"You're a darling, Mrs. Ticer," Mary told her, "and that's all the more reason why we shouldn't give this secret away. So after we've covered up the luggage carrier and piled all the rest of the holly beside the car, Junior and Roderick and I will climb into the backseats and sit on our feet with our legs tucked up under us. Then, Auntie Madge, you and Mrs. Ticer can pile the holly on the floor until it reaches as high as our heads, if you want to, and cover it with a blanket. That's one time you wild boys will have to sit still," she admonished the giggling youngsters—"It's no joke to fall into a lot of holly—to say nothing of spoiling the Christmas decorations."

"Then when we get to Mrs. Ticer's we can unload her share——"

"Unload nothing," my good neighbor interrupted forcefully. "I kin take Jerry and go down another day This is all for you folks."

She stopped my protest with an imperative gesture. "Don't you say a word," she warned, "I want to do it. And if you don't mind letting 'em come, I'll take Roderick and Junior along the day I go. I would not want to ask for better help than they be."

"Look out, Mrs. Ticer," Mary warned, in a low voice. "They'll burst with pride if you say much more."

And indeed the small boys looked as if her prediction might be justified as they swaggeringly packed away their picnic gear in the car, after they had thanked our neighbor with boisterous enthusiasm.

We followed Mary's plan in packing the holly for transportation to the farmhouse and I drove home as swiftly as possible, mindful of the cramped position of Mary and the two small boys on the back seat. But whatever of discomfort was theirs, it was forgotten as we came into the farmyard to see a large car drawn up at the side of the veranda. Junior's shout could have been heard at Ticer's.

"It's Uncle Harry's car. I'll bet Marion's here."

But I knew that Marion was not yet released from school, and I wondered fearfully as I ran up the steps if some threatening emergency had brought the Underwoods to us ahead of time.

Stays Fat
YET SHE EATS
LIKE A BIRD

HERE'S the REASON

MANY fat people deny themselves year after year, yet stay fat. Many injure themselves in the process. It is time they know what millions know, including all modern physicians. A common cause of excess fat lies in an under-active gland. And that fat will not disappear until this wrong condition is corrected.

Marmola prescription tablets contain the best factors now employed. A famous laboratory prepares them. The formula appears in every box, also the scientific reasons for results.

People have used Marmola for 22 years—millions of boxes of it. Users everywhere now show and tell the amazing and delightful results. They do not starve or over-exercise. They combat the cause by feeding a gland factor which is scant, and which largely controls nutrition.

Why not do what so many have done, with such good results, for so long. Learn by a test what this method does, then carry it as far as you wish. Do this in fairness to yourself, to please your family and friends. Then tell others who need this help. Go start today.
